King of the Camp Relic

Reconnaissance by Gavin Bramwit

To kickstart the playoff season for King of the Camp, we played a brand-new game: Relic Reconnaissance. With various relics such as basketballs, volleyballs, soccer balls, and footballs hidden around camp, along with one main relic for each team, players had ample opportunity to make some creative plays. To start off the game, JAMES BYERS (of the Dragons) ran the first-ever relic to the office. Soon after, C.I.T. representative MICAH BLUM found the Phoenix's main relic and ran like a bull to secure the thirty points for his team. REMY WEIMAN also ran some balls into the safe zone for the Phoenix. Later on, JAMES BYERS and JACK CARTER ran an insane two on one basketball play by the canteen to score some more points for the Dragons. Henchman MAX AGINS was also getting into the mix. Faking a groin injury, AGINS sought help from two members of opposing teams to aid him to the health center just to pull their socks. What a trick play that was. Overall, I'm happy to say that Relic Reconnaissance was a smashing success. Can't wait to see how it improves next year.

JACK CARTER makes the final sprint to the office with his relic after maneuvering through two defenders.

Dina Mia Pizza Party by Levi Blum

To celebrate and honor our rookie campers, JASON decided to have a whole camp Dina Mia pizza party just before their departure. While the pizzas were coming out, we took the time to announce those who had earned a pin through our Big Ten Legends program. Some rookie campers such as JUDAH PAUL received an award as well as their pins. For this session so far, only one camper has earned the coveted mastery pin. A big congratulations to CHARLIE "CHUCK" EISENBERG for being the first to get a mastery pin and have their name memorialized in the new and upcoming indoor sports complex. After a C.I.T.-guided Gully Rush started by BEN LAZARUS, the whole camp launched into singing "The Menominee Medley", and extras such as Build Me Up Buttercup". We then finished our pizza and returned to our cabins with full stomachs.

Movie Skit Night

by Gareth Doherty and

Levi Blum

Broadway at Menominee! On Monday night, campers and counselors gathered in Wasserman Hall for one of the most creative skit nights we have seen so far. The cabins were challenged to choose a favorite movie of theirs, and to recreate it in whichever way they saw fit. As usual, the parameters these cabins were being judged on were taste, originality, creativity, participation, friendship, and of course, taste. The night began with Cabin 4 whose skit started shakily but “Lodgey” (RYAN HUME) regathered the troops and gave the audience their preferred ending to Top-Gun (which was basically UFC 205). However, the standout skit for the Juniors was Cabin 5, a take on “Inside Out”, as if the characters were counselors and the movie was narrated by JEREMY BACH. A particularly stellar performance came from MICHAEL HAZAN with his near perfect impression of JONAH GAGERMAN. In the Intermediate division, the controversy was ever-present, and for good reason. Both Cabin 7 and 17 performed well-made and comedic skits. Cabin 7’s skit was a spin on “Toy Story”, having Sid change all the toys into counselors. Some great imitations were made but a personal highlight was when JACK FRIEDMAN (imitating DORA) yelled “Go Dragons!”. But Cabin 17 ended up taking the cake for the Intermediates with their rendition of “Spiderman: No Way Home”. They took the approach of having counselors wanting to erase things they have done from the memories of others. To cast these spells, Cabin 17 employed none other than the Marvel superfan himself, JACOB KASDIN playing as Doctor Strange. From EMILIO being the best umpire to NATHAN PRIESTNER being the best boat driver, their skit mastered the elements of creativity and originality while remaining tasteful. For the Seniors, the skits were slightly underwhelming with one cabin standing head and shoulders above the rest. Cabin 16 got the camp on their feet and excited with a beat Ojibwa chant, but their skit didn’t quite meet the criteria we were looking for. In the end, it was Cabin 15 who came out on top with another re-enactment of “Spiderman: No Way Home”. In this version, MICHAEL BROOKS played Miles Morales and delivered improvised lines with great taste which had the crowd cheering by the end of the skit. Great effort by all cabins, the next skit night can’t come any sooner!

NEO SCHNEIDER and COOPER BORSTEIN of Cabin 16 present their skit.

C.I.T. Financial Advice

Column by Nate Beermann

Ladies and Gentlemen of Camp Menominee, welcome back to another year of financial advice from those C.I.T.s. Today’s topic is crypto coins and why not to invest. Firstly, crypto is a SCAM! (Hot take alert, I know). Most crypto coins are unstable and can lose you a lot of money if you misplace your trust. NFT’s are also really ugly. They are bad for the environment because they use equal amounts of energy as some entire nations. For example, someone you might see as a smart investor, like JACOB “NATE” SCHNEIDER, has lost all of his college savings, spending it on Doge Coin after it reached a one-dollar value. The number one reason not to invest is because of “rug pulling”. When a crypto coin is created and gains popularity, the creator can stop the trading of the coin and run with all the money. In the words of JUICE GOODMAN when he was asked about crypto currency, “Nah, that’s a scam”.
